

EZ RATE SHEET

Anatomy of a Sellable Loan

What institutional buyers actually look for before they see the collateral

LAYER 1

Pricing Consistency

A buyer reviewing your tape will check: did similar deals price similarly? Unexplained rate variance signals process risk — and gets priced in as a discount. Consistency is the first filter, before loan quality.

Documentation Quality

Serviceable tapes have complete origination data, property valuations, and servicing records. If an analyst has to rebuild your tape before bidding, you start from a disadvantage — usually a lower offer or a pass.

LAYER 3

Underwriting Process Visibility

Buyers model risk by assuming your next pool looks like your last. If there's no auditable record of underwriting logic, they can't verify that assumption. That uncertainty has a cost — and it comes out of your bid.

Loan Characteristic Consistency

LTV distributions, term structures, property type mix — wide variance without clear intent signals an origination process that isn't governed by defined parameters. Buyers apply a discount to account for unpredictability.
