

RATE SHEET STRATEGY · WEEK 2

*Why "my guys
know the pricing"
is a hidden liability.*

The phrase every principal says with pride — and
three places it quietly costs you deals.

SWIPE →

THE PRINCIPAL'S QUOTE

”

My guys know the pricing. They've been doing this for years.

— EVERY FOUNDER, EVERY SHOP

THE REFRAME

It's not the problem.

Experience is real. Tribal knowledge is valuable.

But here's where it shows up as a liability — three ways, every shop, every week.

Problem 01

*A senior LO leaves — and takes their mental model
with them.*

Twelve years of judgment, walked out the door in a cardboard box. The next hire starts from zero.

Problem 02

*A broker calls
after hours and gets a quote
from whoever picks up.*

Same deal. Different quote. The broker remembers the lower one.

Problem 03

*Two borrowers, identical profiles —
different rates
because they talked to different people.*

It's not bias. It's a system that allows variance. Eventually someone notices.

THE PRINCIPLE

*Pricing isn't a person.
It's a process.*

When the process owns the pricing, your people get faster — not more critical to keep around.

EZ RATE SHEET

*Built so your pricing
doesn't walk
out the door.*

Codify the rules. Empower every LO. Quote consistently, day or night.

ezratesheet.com →